Editorial Review

Review

"In this thoughtful, clear and interesting work, Reading University's Professor of International Relations, Beatrice Heuser, offers a significant introduction to Western European thinking on war and the military." - RUSI

Review

"What Michael Howard and Peter Paret did for Clausewitz, Beatrice Heuser has now done for eight strategists who thought and wrote about warfare from the Middle Ages to Napoleon's day. If their contributions are not as great as those of Machiavelli and Clausewitz, they still have much to teach us today? and Beatrice Heuser has done the world of strategists great service by making their teachings so accessible." (John A. Nagl, President, Center for a New American Security and author of Learning to Eat Soup with a Knife)

"Prof. Heuser knows the history of military thought as well as anybody does. In this fascinating book, she sheds light on a period that is too often ignored. Highly recommended." (Martin van Creveld)

"We would do well to read this book as we seek the strategic path through the manifest insecurities of our age; others have been here before us and could show us the way." (General Sir Rupert Smith KCB DSO OBE QGM)
